Diplomas, which marked the completion of four years of study, the end of school for some and the beginning of higher courses of study for others, were presented to a class of eighty-six at the graduation exercises of the Norwich Free Academy in Slater Memorial hall Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The class was among the largest in the history of the school.

Just before 4 o'clock a group picture was taken of the class in front of the Academy building. The class members then filed into Slater Hall, taking seats reserved for them.

Seated on the platform were Principal Henry A. Tirrell and members of the board of trustees. The class

Classmates:
Four years have now passed since we first assembled here as juniors. What has happened within that time will always be fondly kept in our memories. Now that it is over it seems to have passed like a dream. As we branch off into different paths of life let us ever keep in mind that whatever steps we take we must accomplish things honorable and worthy, things that will bring glory to our school so that we may be proud assmates: to our school so that we may be proud to say, "He or she was a classmate of mine." Although for the class this is a day of separation still let us throughout our lives think of one an-other as we do of our brothers and sisters and let us always be cheerful helpers in case of need.
